Around same time last year, our team got together with this initiative that would come to be known as Chase Up Diary. We had some idea how we need to execute our plans, but majorly, it was by sheer hard work, commitment and collective effort of everyone involved that we were able to translate an idea into results. Hence, it gives me immense pleasure to now present to you the third edition of Chase Up Diary. Sitting through editorial meetings for this edition, it made me realize we have come a long way in content development and creativity for the magazine. That is also evident from feedback we received from our valued readers over the last year. Your appreciation has encouraged us to strive towards delivering even better results.

We have tried to put together for you all developments of previous six months. Our CEO, Salman Bashir, was interviewed for Aurora's July – August 2019 edition. His views expressed in the interview were widely quoted on many business forums during recent months. We are reproducing the interview here as we believe his views and vision deserve a wider readership in the industry and the organization.

As an organization, highlight of the period was the launch of our Gujranwala Store, which came about by strength of our backs and sweat of our brows. For our employees, highlight of the period were, of course, successful conclusion of appraisals of the performance year 2018 – 19. We congratulate all deserving colleagues who have been promoted to new roles this year and wish them all the best for their coming years at Chase Up.

Keeping its tradition alive, Chase Up HR, continued to set trends in the industry with newer ways to facilitate employees. In July, we held a 2 days' medical camp, where our colleagues went through free medical examination. We hope this helps them to maintain a healthy lifestyle and wish them a healthy and blessed life.

Among other articles included in the magazine, are accounts of Independence Day celebrations, trainer and consultant Farhad Karamally's visit to Chase Up Head Office, Chase Up's plans for CSR initiatives, informative pieces on HSE activities at Chase Up and NLP, and usual features which have become inseparable part of this magazine.

I am thankful to my team and all contributors who took out time to write for us. We are thankful to Almighty that our readers, especially Chase Up colleagues, now look forward to not just read this magazine, but also contribute to it.

"We introduced a new business model"

A conversation on opportunities and challenges for Chase Up and retail sector

Aurora: When was Chase Up established?

SALMAN BASHIR: Chase Up was originally established as Chase in 1984 as a single store in Baha-durabad. At the time, there were only small shops in Karachi and although our outlet was not very large, it was a success from the start because it was one of the first departmental stores in Karachi. Later, we opened branches in Clifton, Gulshan (Nipa Chowrangi) and Shaheed-e-Millat Road. Then, 20 years later, a split took place within the family. Three brothers (including my father, Bashir Abdul Ghaffar, Founder and Chairman, Chase Up) formed one group and the other two brothers formed another group. Two outlets (those on Nipa Chowrangi and Shaheed-e-Millat Road) were now owned by my father's group and to differentiate between the two groups, we named ours Chase Up. Unfortunately, by this time (April 2005), the business was not doing very well and when the Deewan Group asked to rent our Shaheed-e-Millat branch, we agreed. In order to clear our inventory there (mainly clothing, shoes and home ware), we held a closing sale and brought down the prices drastically. Customers came in droves and within 10 days, the stocks were cleared. The sale was an eye-opener for us.

Aurora: How so?

SALMAN BASHIR: It made us realise that the reason why our outlets were not doing well was because our prices were too high, which was why, from time to time, we would offer discounts. However this approach did not make sense and we realised we were not concentrating enough on our customers and on factors such as quality and affordability. After the sale, we decided our new business model would be based on providing quality merchandise at reasonable prices rather than relying on sporadic discounts. My father rented the Nipa outlet from my uncles and we re-launched in June 2005. We bought items in bulk and cash (to get the lowest rates possible) and sold them at fixed, low prices. The business started doing well and we now have eight branches; six in Karachi, and one each in Faisalabad and Multan.

Aurora: When did Chase Up branch into groceries?

SALMAN BASHIR: In 2009, we bought a large store in Clifton (near Dolmen Mall). On the first floor, we set up our clothing and home ware departments and we used the space on the ground floor to open a small supermarket as an experiment. It worked and when we opened our Shaheed-e-Millat branch a year later, we had a supermarket there as well. However, we still concentrate on clothing and have opened a design studio and introduced brands such as Jalpari (women's prêt) and In Sole (shoes). In this way, we provide a wide range of shopping options and this differentiates us from our competitors.

Aurora: In addition to clothing, what other products do you offer?

SALMAN BASHIR: We have introduced a range of 'in-house' household items such as dishwashing liquid and soap, hand wash, multi-purpose cleaners and tissues, as well as foodstuff such as flour, pulses and rice. All are competitively priced and popular.

Aurora: Who is your primary target audience?

SALMAN BASHIR: The major chunk of our customers are from the middle and lower-middle class, although a significant number are from SEC A. To cater to the latter, we are upgrading our current stores to provide them with a 'shopping experience'.

Aurora: What sort of differences do you see between customers in Karachi and those in Multan and Faisalabad?

SALMAN BASHIR: Purchasing power in Punjab is relatively high, even among the lower SECs. They do not have any problems when it comes to purchasing commodities such as butter, milk and wheat and this is due to the presence of an agricultural belt. In Karachi, our customers are primarily businessmen and professionals and they are harder to please, because they are more budget-oriented and savvy. Karachi is a tougher market to penetrate. From what we see, in Punjab, people seem to have higher disposable incomes and we will be opening a branch in Gujranwala shortly. Gujranwala store has been inaugurated since and is being appreciated by consumers in Gujranwala.

Aurora: How has the economic downturn affected retail?

SALMAN BASHIR: It has affected everyone and sales are down, especially of imported items. However, there is a positive angle to this; as reliance on imported goods decreases, local companies will be forced to come up with viable substitutes. Another way that the downturn has affected us is that when we open a new store, the equipment (chillers and generators) is all imported. This means that setting up a new store is now much more expensive due to the devaluation of the rupee. In fact, retail has become a low-return, high-risk game and in some cases, a high-investment, low-returns game. Earlier, it was much easier and not as expensive to open a retail store. Another contributing factor is that real estate prices continue to rise, so it is even harder to make profits.

Aurora: How have profit margins been affected?

SALMAN BASHIR: They have decreased, although revenues have not been impacted as much. This is because as a large volume player, Chase Up receives benefits from distributor discounts on commodities such as soap or oil. FMCGs' prices have been increasing and several brands have added smaller SKUs because customers want these options now. Although customers are brand loyal to an extent, when prices cross a certain limit, they will look for better options. I expect that customers who purchase high-end brands will switch to cheaper options, although commodities such as butter and milk may not be affected as much.

“As reliance on imported goods decreases, local companies will be forced to come up with viable substitutes.”

Aurora: In light of the downturn, how do you see the next 12 months unfolding?

SALMAN BASHIR: For us, there is an opportunity in categories such as clothes; people who earn between five and 55,000 rupees a month will still need them and may shift to our clothes, fabric or accessories because they are cheaper. This means that despite the prevailing economic climate, there is an opportunity to develop new products. We are committed to providing good, value-for-money products to our customers, all the while focusing on quality. We have not experienced any major setbacks in the past year and this has to do with our customers' loyalty because we make an active effort to make our items as affordable as possible. However, in retail, we always run the risk of losing customers if we do not fulfill their expectations. To retain them, we will continue to place the emphasis on pricing, training our salespeople and customer service. Hopefully, this will prove to be a winning combination.

Eid Gifts

CHASE Up's PROUD TRADITION

In the usual hectic routine around the year, Ramadan Kareem is one month where the entire society lets go all shades for one purpose. The month long supplications and good deeds are a way to achieve nearness to the Almighty. For all the time spent in a way as the Almighty desires during the month, the believers are rewarded with the festive day of Eid.

On this joyful day, Chase Up management has always included all colleagues in the festivities. Needless to say, that this practice is not limited to joyous occasions, but Chase Up stands with its workers in dire times as well.

Continuing this practice, Chase Up management shared beautiful gifts with all staff. All cadres of the organization; from managers to domestic staff at the Head Office, Store Management to sales staff at the stores, and General Manager to loaders at our warehouses; were given special Eid gifts so we could be part of their celebrations. Upholding this tradition not only brought smiles to their faces but also contributed in ensuring they had a joyous Eid.

True to its tradition, Chase Up celebrated

Jashn-e-Pakistan

Muhammad Ateeb

Beloved Pakistan is a Blessing of the Almighty which has enabled us to live with pride, with a distinct identity. It's not a mere piece of land but an expression of the sacrifices made by our forefathers for an ideology, philosophy and belief. We remember these sacrifices each year and it is a hallmark of the nations which live on, that they remember sacrifices of their forefathers.

As every year, 14th August was celebrated with usual fervor. This year too it was national flags' galore all around. Everyone was busy in celebrations of their own, expressing their love for Pakistan.

The day was marked by extra ordinary hustle bustle at Chase Up stores. Be it the Store Managers, security team or the sales staff, all were occupied in preparations for the day. For those looking on, it appeared as if the arrangements were being made for a special dignitary.

Moments later it was clear that the preparations were for Independence Day festivities. Stores were decorated with national flags. Delicious and eye-catching cake was brought in on a table. Festivities began at the same time at all stores with recitation of Holy Quran, followed by distribution of cake among all those present at the store. The ceremony ended with prayers for wellbeing and safety of our homeland.

Team of the Quarter

Faisalabad was the leading store with 5 titles.

Chase Up management has always strived to duly recognize efforts and labors of its employees. To achieve this objective, a program called Team of the Quarter (ToQ) was launched in 2017. Its objective was to create and promote a sense of healthy competition among employees, to be held every three (3) months.

This year too, this program was implemented in its true spirit. All departments at all stores participated enthusiastically. All did their best to excel in competition as the incentives included monetary rewards along with certificates. After 3 months of continuous struggle, dedication and commitment, results were announced on conclusion of 3rd quarter.

Breaking records for all previous quarters, Faisalabad Store managed to outdo Multan Store. In preceding quarters, Multan had topped all competitions. For Quarter 3, Faisalabad Store secured 5 titles, Multan 4 while Hassan Square, Shaheed e Millat Road and Ocean bagged 1 title each. It is a spectacle to watch happiness of all winning teams. Framed pictures of all winning departments were installed at all stores, along with individual rewards and certificates.

Team Activation Gujranwala

A new dawn with renewed enthusiasm

Keeping human resource engaged and committed is crucial in achievement of broader business goals. A well-executed team activation event, especially at the time of inauguration, helps in unlocking human resource's true potential by laying out the desired direction for them and inspires them to strive to achieve beaconing business goals.

It was my second successful team activation event that I got to witness i.e. successful opening of new, state-of-the-art Chase Up Gujranwala Store. It has also become very visible with time how growth strategy has been effectively rolled out over the last few years. Energy, passion, enthusiasm and level of participation of newly hired staff in this event were a sight to behold and inspired by hard work and persistence of the leadership team. Obviously, everyone in the team had given their best for successful execution of Gujranwala project and has consequently raised the performance bar for future projects.

In his address to newly hired staff at the inauguration, Mr. Jawad Bashir, Director Chase Up, emphasized on achieving excellence in customer service through humility and persistently relating with customers' needs. He also said that going that extra mile in customer satisfaction is the key to individual and organization's success.

Customized training activities by industry renowned trainers, Akhtar Abbas (CEO, High Potential Ideas) and Wali Zahid (CEO, Skill City) were a pleasant initiation for our new family members who joined Chase Up at Gujranwala store. Among the topics covered during these sessions, importance was placed on personal grooming, communication, team work and leadership skills.

At conclusion of this Team Activation event, efforts of all those who had contributed in putting it together were lauded by the management. We hope and believe this will go a long way in keeping the staff prepared to face coming challenges and enable them to recognize expectations that management has of them.

Also present at the event were Director Chase Up, Mustafa Bashir, Head of Human Resource, Muhammad Raihaan Siddequee Regional Manager, Azhar Baig and Regional HR Manager, Rao Jameel.

Chase Up takes care of employees' health because...

Health is wealth

Muhammad Yousuf Munir

Healthy employees are not only crucial for an organization's development, but are also helpful in creating an overall healthy society. Climate change and increased environmental pollution have also affected human health. Chase Up employees are facilitated with medical and life takaful coverage by Jubilee Health Takaful. Prestigious hospitals all over the country are included in the panel.

Chase Up HR department organized a 2 days' health screening program, on 18th and 19th July, 2019, for its warehouse and operations staff, at Star Warehouse, to increase self-awareness about their health among the employees. Renowned doctors from Indus Hospital examined hundreds of staff members. The examinations included taking blood pressure, blood sugar, chest and pulse examination and tests for jaundice and digestion among other tests. Staff were appropriately advised and prescribed medicines which will be helpful in maintaining their health and go for further treatment if need be. No doubt, working for others' health and happiness is a spiritually rewarding act.

A healthy society,

According to medical experts blood's circulation life in human body is 120 days. Blood donation is sadqa e jaria as it saves lives.

As a Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) initiative, Chase Up HR department collaborated with Indus Hospital to hold a blood donation camp on 19th July, 2019, at Star Warehouse. More than 50 staff members made blood donations because it is our collective belief that saving one human life is like saving entire humanity. Donating blood is also a national duty as Pakistan has often suffered accidents, natural and other disasters.

This blood donating exercise was a completely safe procedure because donors' blood was tested for Hepatitis B and C, Malaria and Syphilis, but donors were also given information on these along with their hemoglobin and blood group. Donors were provided a certificate and blood test report by Indus Hospital.

What in NLP?

A study of human attitudes,
thoughts and actions
Recap of an interesting workshop

Muhammad Yousuf Munir

"What is this NLP?"

People queued up to inquire as soon as registration mail was sent out by training department.

"Is it a training on Psyche?"

Another asked, "I am susceptible to anger, will this help me?"

However, since this was a new training, people were apprised that "Neuro" refers to Neurology, "Linguistic" is for study of languages, and "Programing" implies how brain's neural language works. Meaning what causes one to do certain actions and why and how the thoughts in one's consciousness are translated into actions.

There are benefits to understanding this. For example, if certain kind of behavior is harmful for a person, it can be easily amended. If certain behavior is beneficial, it can be adopted and taught to others as well. This is called modeling under NLP. Through this process, a more useful and effective lifestyle can be adopted in a short span of time.

A session on NLP for Chase Up's senior management was conducted on 21st and 22nd November, 2019, at Karachi School of Business and Leadership, by trainer Wajihuddin Umair. In sessions that lasted from 10 am to 5 pm, captivating practical sessions were also conducted along with theoretical discussions. Particularly, how fright, phobias, depression, uncertainty, temper and embarrassment can be overcome to establish cordial relationships with clients.

During one of these practice sessions, a participant expressed dislike for syrup and fondness for tea. Hence, to convert his dislike into acceptance, he was asked to close his eyes, take a deep breath and build an outline of both, syrup and tea, using his sixth sense. He was communicated in a peculiar way to replace his constructed imagery of tea with that of syrup and imagine the taste and smell of the syrup to be same as tea's. In similar ways, the participants went through other practice sessions which were aimed at elevating their individual and team productivity, confidence, communication, mindset and results.

Lunch and other refreshments had been arranged for the participants at KSBL cafeteria. At the end of the sessions, Head of HR, Muhammad Raihaan Siddeeqee presented the trainer with a shield and handed certificates to all participants.

Mirza Hashaam

Modern Retail Trends

U.S. Commercial Service - an overseas arm of the U.S. Department of Commerce published a report on Pakistan Retail Industry that there are more than 2.5 million shops in Pakistan, most of which offer basic products only. Majority of these shops are specialist stores that only offer a single range such as grocery, utensils, hardware, stationery, etc. and between 1,000 to 1,500 wholesalers mainly in larger cities. Most of these retailers still operate on the traditional brick and mortar model with over the counter transactions while multinationals hold a very negligible share.

About a year ago, Bloomberg reported that Pakistan's retail sector could become one of the fastest growing in the world. However, no research or industry insider substantiated this forecast, at least for the year 2019. If this is the case, then what is the industry missing?

According to a UK based lifestyle website, retail-focus.co.uk, a research for retail market in year 2020 suggests that retailers and suppliers should consider an omnichannel approach as a newfound efficient concept that could help them thrive in future retail marketplace.

Omnichannel retail is a retail industry term used to describe brands selling across channels, including branded websites, marketplaces, brick and mortar stores and social commerce such as Facebook and Instagram. This modern approach to retail focuses on designing a well-rounded user experience (virtual or physical) and creating a buying experience that is nothing like what was around five years ago. The approach believes that each key element of the omnichannel strategy are of individual importance; brick and mortar stores will remain important for customer interaction in order to build trust, a branded website is key for customer convenience and accessibility and the opportunity to sell across social channels taps into the increasing prevalence of recommendation purchasing.

When taking this into context, a consumer can find the latest offers on Facebook or Instagram and then to ensure the quality and genuineness of the product and store, the consumer can visit the store physically. The brand's website will provide more convenience to the consumer by having a complete layout of the store along with floor, section and aisle details about where the desired merchandise is shelved. To confirm if the offer is still valid, the consumer will scan the bar code at a nearby device, which will display the current price. On the way out, the consumer will pay for the purchase by scanning the QR code using an e-wallet mobile application at the cash counter.

This last step in the experience is another major disruption; the advent of Electronic Money Institutions (EMIs), regulated by State Bank of Pakistan, which is expected to issue more licenses over the next few months. This shift will make shopping, especially grocery shopping as it involves the largest sums on a monthly basis, both quicker and more convenient and we can expect it to roll out across stores throughout the next couple of years.

The key to success in 2020, is combining the likes of Artificial Intelligence, Augmented Reality and Virtual Reality being used to help brands interact with the customer. An omnichannel approach will allow for the use of smartphones within the physical environment, with the likes of H&M and Sainsbury's being the pioneers for this cross-channel activity.

Further to our commitment for best welfare Policies, we also have an extensive Social Responsibility program to help not just our employees, but deserving people for whom we receive recommendations from our employees to help them in dire circumstances. Did you know?

Muhammad Yousuf Munir,
Syed Izhar ul Hassan

Almighty has blessed Pakistan with not just countless natural resources, but also human resource.

As per United Nations' statistics on human development, 64% of Pakistan's total population is below 29 years of age (MoC, 2019). E Commerce in Pakistan has demonstrated growth. There are 71 million internet users in Pakistan.

Presence on online platforms

Chase Up is present on all online platforms including websites, mobile applications (IOS, Android), WhatsApp, emails, and phone calls.

When did Chase Up E Store start operations?

Chase Up started its E Store service in 2016. It is Chase Up's mission to ensure quality, reasonably priced, quick and easy online service to our customers.

What can you buy?

Grocery (only for Karachi), personal care, electronics, jewelry, crockery, stationery, hosiery (undergarments, towels), etc., can be ordered online.

How are orders processed?

Kamran is a regular customer of Chase Up. He shops for his monthly grocery on Chase Up E Store because he is satisfied with Chase Up's standards, price and services. Upon opening grocery section of the website, first desired items are selected and then clicks on order button so he can receive a call from our telesales officer.

"Assalam o Alaikum Mr. Kamran! Thank you for choosing Chase Up. Please confirm your order; flour (10 kg), sugar (2 kg)". As per the list, product, brand, quantity, prices are repeated and confirms the order. In the end he asks how does he prefer to pay; through cash or credit / debit card?

Kamran is aware that Chase Up has a free and quick delivery service across Karachi and his order will be delivered within 24 hours. He resides on 5th floor of a complex but he need not come downstairs to receive his order; delivery boy takes his merchandise to his doorstep.

On the customer feedback form, Kamran has always given scores very generously on quality, prices, service and to delivery boy, because he always conducts himself in a very pleasant manner. He stands aside after knocking on the door. Well dressed, always smiling and greeting with Assalam o Alikum in a pleasant way. The delivery boy upon delivering the order opens the package so Kamran can check and asks if he is satisfied. Upon Kamran's positive response, he asks about the mode of payment and accepts payment by cash or card, as per Kamran's convenience and never forgets to leave by thanking him.

New Year

If you wish to change yourself for the New Year...
Don't wait, do it NOW!

New Year, New Year's Eve, or the New Year's Day, all part of the same celebrations as the calendar changes. Since, Gregory calendar is the most prevalent and used calendar, this celebration is usually referred to as the one taking place on 1st January, globally. But in different cultures, other calendars are still in use. People of Iran, for example, and Zoroastrians celebrate their New Year's day as Nauroz. Chinese too have their own occasion of New Year. So do the Telugu people in India, who celebrate Ugadi, or the Assamese, also in India, who celebrate Bihu.

The celebrations on this occasion are in hope for a better and blessed year ahead. It is a common practice now to embrace, congratulate and wish each other with similar hope and prayers for a better year.

Think about it, New Year is actually a time for us to assess our spiritual and physical state and take a look back at the year gone by to assess our achievements and losses. And if you have done so and waiting for the New Year to change yourself for the better, do not wait, THIS is the time to do so. Because time is like an ice slab on a sunny day, which won't wait for anyone, better put it to use before it melts away.

Chase Up HSE SAFETY FOR ALL

In contemporary times, occupational Health and Safety is recognized as a mandatory support function to keep business operations risk-free for employees, stakeholders as well as the general community. Creating a safe and healthy work environment has never been as essential as it is today. A single incident causing injury or death can have far-reaching and devastating consequences for a business. Developing a safety awareness culture not only helps an organization to significantly reduce incidents, injuries and preventable costs to business, but also aids in achieving social acknowledgement.

Realizing the importance and need of a safe and healthy work environment, Chase UP management in 2017 expanded the scope of efforts in a bid to develop a formal structure of Health, Safety and Environmental (HSE). With dedicated and skilled resources, HSE department didn't take much time to assess the challenges and ascertain the needs to uplift company's safety profile from basic to advance level.

Along with a clear vision and direction, HSE team started the journey aiming to improve on two key factors to start with; industry standards and employees' awareness. While HSE team strived to equip all Chase Up locations with minimum required tools to tackle fire and medical emergencies, simultaneous efforts were made to develop training modules encompassing basic and technical knowledge on safety.

Numerous in-house and outdoor training sessions were conducted throughout this period to prepare not just fellow workers, but to enable the organization as a whole to respond professionally to any emergency. Emergency Response Teams (ERTs) were formed for each site and trained to use the equipment competently and effectively.

As of today, all Chase Up locations are equipped with sufficient fire extinguishers, smoke detection and alarm systems and first aid kits with regular inspections on daily, weekly and monthly basis in addition to quarterly preventive maintenance to keep the system healthy and fully functional. Chase Up's all new sites are equipped with sprinkler system which speaks volumes of the management's commitment to safer work conditions.

As we are moving into 2020, HSE aims to organize frequent drills and rehearsals in order to further Chase UP's capacity to provide a safe and healthy environment to its workers, business partners and customers.

Higher education is faced with multiple challenges in Pakistan, especially in public sector. We, senior management and faculty at University of Karachi are striving to not just dispense best curriculum content for our students to keep them abreast with any University in the world, but also to facilitate them with best facilities to give our students an educational experience that ranks among the best.

We are glad that corporate sector has reached out to us to help us accomplish our mission. Chase Up is among the first such organizations who offered us to upgrade some of our facilities. Department of Public Administration (DPA), at University of Karachi, is one of the most progressive faculties at UoK. I am pleased to share with you that Chase Up will be financing uplift project at Department of Public Administration. In the meetings leading to this understanding, Mr. Salman Bashir, CEO, Chase Up, was gracious enough to visit the Department in person and share his vision on enhancement of education and skill set of human resource in retail industry in Pakistan.

It does not happen every day a CEO of a renowned concern expresses his views with such candidness. Hence, we decided to do our bit by agreeing to offer dedicated courses on retail management at DPA. We hope this collaboration between Chase Up and UoK is just the start of a fruitful and long lasting partnership. Our prayers and best wishes are for Mr. Bashir Abdul Ghaffar, Mr. Salman Bashir and their family.

Any position of front-line service is most prestigious. Service is equal to Ibadat. When offering assistance to a customer, it is the retail staffs' duty – farz; to step-up to give the customer a memorable and inspiring experience. Being a customer at Chase Up, I am always happy and satisfied to visit your outlets. Yet, there is no end to how much one can improve. The desire to be better; to fulfill the obligations of a job – a promise; to aspire to outshine and live a life of honesty, integrity and contribution is a life lived fully. With this message, my wishes for the learning and development team of Chase Up are to continuously strive for higher ideals so as to make any and every customer interaction an unforgettable opportunity. HR Diary is a commendable initiative which has been appreciated by its readers for its diverse content.

Its content is engrossing, educational as well as very relevant to the industry and has enough insights for observers like me to take cue for how major players in retail can be engaged.

Testimonials

Wali Zahid
(CEO, Skill City)

I had the opportunity to talk to Chase Up new hires at Gujranwala outlet's inaugural activation. Their energy and enthusiasm was remarkable.

What these talks from external speakers can do is bring fresh perspective, increase employee engagement and give new impetus to people. It breaks the work monotony.

Since this was already an inaugural activity, motivation of new hires was at an all-time high. The management's magic would be to keep this motivation alive, and increase the dose every passing week and every quarter so Chase Up's revenue target and customer service benchmarks for 2020 could be achieved.

Testimonials

My engagement with Chase Up started about a year back. I was visiting retail chains for a large scale human resource development program, under the auspices of United Nations Development Program. I remember walking in to Chase Up Head Office and being pleasantly surprised. It was unlike any other organization in the sector; progressive and up to date. Throughout the following months, i.e. for the duration UNDP remained involved in the program, I got to see and know the Senior Management very closely. I was unsurprised when Chase Up offered their training facilities for the training sessions. It says a lot about the extent the Management is willing to go to be a socially responsible organization. Since, then I have had a chance to exchange views with their Head of HR, Muhammad Raihaan Siddeeqee, on countless forums. I can see that Chase Up is bound to go places, provided they execute their plans with same enthusiasm as I have witnessed until now.

Please accept my heartiest congratulations on the launch of 3rd edition of this beautiful and informative quarterly magazine, Chase Up Diary. This magazine is a testimony to Mr. Bashir's philosophy of putting 'people before business'. It is this core philosophy that has successfully placed Chase Up apart from its counterparts. Being an ex-Chaser myself, I am witness to Mr. Salman Bashir's utmost dedication towards employee betterment and prosperity which results in superior business performance and growth. For this mighty task, he chose a visionary leader, Mr. Muhammad Raihaan Siddeeqee who, with his passionate team of HR professionals, is setting new examples of best HR practices in Pakistan. If such activities continue, I will not be surprised if Chase Up ranks itself among the best employers in near future, InshaaAllah.

Muhammad Adnan Azam
CEO, Leaders Lab

Chase Up has succeeded in becoming a trusted name in retail in a short span. Surely, the management has had a major role to play in this achievement. Capable staff, willing to give their best, is key to accelerated growth of any organization. Chase Up Diary is an initiative worthy of appreciation and in my opinion, best mode to let the world know of other initiatives and efforts by the management.

I recently came across Chase Up Diary's second edition and have read most of the articles. Salman Bashir's interview is an account of an envious journey from failure to success. New entrepreneurs can definitely learn from it. The 'Did you know?' piece on store merchandising is an article that can supplement a case study perfectly. I hope and wish Chase Up Diary continues to publish such informative pieces.

Iftar Dinner

Ramazan is a blessed month. The fact that Holy Quran was revealed in this Holy Month, is testament to this month's status. It is also important to understand that why Almighty has chosen this month among all months for us to attain closeness to Him. Fasting softens and mellows our hearts and our hearts turn towards those lawful desires only which Almighty has deemed appropriate for us. Demanding routine of fasts makes us realize there are blessings that we take for granted as well as fear the outcome of unlawful acts. Only when one relates to these feelings, the need for being thankful dawns upon him.

Chase Up arranges for special festivities on all religious festivals. This blessed Ramazan, Chase Up organized Iftar for its Head Office, Stores and Warehouse senior management at Lal Qila restaurant. Such activities are also necessary to improve informal relations between staff. Iftar was preceded by special prayers for wellbeing of the organization and everyone associated with it. Iftar was then followed by specially arranged dinner for the participants.
